Did you know?

- Even though Alfred Nobel, creator of the Nobel prizes, was born in Sweden, he decided that the Nobel Peace Prize should be awarded in Norway. It is awarded every year by a committee of five people chosen by the Norwegian Parliament.
- When people first settled in Norway they called themselves 'norrmenn' (men of the North).
- Trolls and other magical creatures are said to have been spotted in Norway. People in Norway have a long history of interactions and experiences with these creatures. Do trolls exist, or is it just a myth? You decide. But if you happen to be out in the forest on a brightly moonlit night, don't be too frightened if you encounter one.
- May 17th is the national day of Norway, called Norwegian Constitution Day. On this day you will see parades, gatherings and lots of national costumes. The 17th of May celebration is one of the biggest holidays of the year in Norway but it is also inclusive of people from all nations. So next May 17th, grab a flag and go celebrate!
